

BMW car insurance at duck2water

Let's take it to the top

There's no arguing about it, BMW has a big reputation (some would say it's the drivers who have more of a reputation), but whichever way you look at it, BMW cars have long been the epitome of prestige and craftsmanship. As a specialist BMW car insurance supplier, duck2water prides itself that we deliver top quality service and a top-spec cheap motor insurance product, but we also offer value for money and competitive quotes.

So, in order to take our look at BMW automobiles we are going to the absolute pinnacle of the BMW tree. Welcome to duck2water's look at the BMW M6.

BMW M6 – Motorsport road driving for car enthusiasts nationwide

The M6 is the high performance version of the 6-Series vehicle, given the power-up by the motorsport division of BMW. And if you're after a high-flyin' coupe with enough kudos to take a hot-air balloon over Everest, then the M6 is your car.

Yes, it's expensive, and at a smidge over £18,500 more expensive than the M5 saloon, many reviewers suggest you've got to really want the cool coupé styling to fork out the standard price of £85,000.

Comfort car driving in the BMW M6

I spent some time on the BMW car configurator webpage and by adding a few little necessities, such as Full Merino Leather and the comfort access gadget, I had soon racked my M6 up to £91,280.00. Still, as my dad used to say, "you wouldn't spoil the ship for a ha'peth of tar" and at just over £5,000 for the full leather interior I feel it would be money well spent.

I have to say, though, that the BMW car configurator is something of a let down and, webwise, did not reflect the legendary BMW ethos of manufacturing perfection. It clunked – to use a hackneyed motoring term – was lumpy and unresponsive. But that was just the website.

M6 car insurance

Yes, it's a high car insurance grouping. Yes, cheap motor insurance is probably not going to leap out at you, but at duck2water we pride ourselves on our competitiveness. We will do our utmost to outshine our competitors and in that respect we think our BMW car insurance is a perfect match for the BMW M6.

The nuts and bolts of a car driver's dream

If you want a unique experience in motoring, the M6 is for you. The 5.0-litre V10 engine offers 500bhp at a high 7750rpm and a maximum torque of 383lb ft at an astounding 6100rpm. See what we mean by unique?

The M6 comes with the same seven-ratio SMG sequential manual gearbox as the M5 which enables the high-rev heat to be maintained. However, the shifts in normal automatic mode are slow and clumsy, and the manual mode, with its choice of steering wheel paddles or mid-mounted gear-stick and choice of shift modes, has resulted in a gearbox that perhaps just isn't as sensitive as a good honest manual.

The M6 is lighter than the M5, primarily due to the carbon-fibre roof, and has a lower centre of gravity, so its noticeably more agile. With the full 500bhp in effect it takes a flabbergastingly quick 4.6 seconds to notch up 62mph and the braking system's Dynamic Stability Control has been honed to act accordingly in tricky driving conditions. But never fear, it can be turned off for trackdays, so there'll be a genuine race feel under your heavily bolstered seat. (That's the actual driver's seat we're referring to.)

Is it good for the environment?

We suggest a Prius; car insurance group 7, 0-60 in 11 seconds, 76 bhp. If you're asking this question, buy a Toyota.

Is the M6 good for me?

Heck, yes. You'll feel like the supreme overlord of the road in this stunning piece of motor engineering and when you use the launch control to catapult yourself, wheels-a-screaming and smoke-a-flowing, you'll know that this was what you meant when, as a child, you scrawled with absolute conviction, "when I grow up I want to be a racing driver." With the BMW M6 – you've made it – you are a racing car driver.
